BILL HISTORY

January 17 is our nation's newest national holiday, celebrating the birth and life of Dr. Martin Luther King. This year students have the opportunity to participate in a conference that embraces the teachings of Dr. King and stresses the active, positive role students have in changing their surroundings. Students will have the opportunity to meet the people who were instrumental in the Civil Rights Movement and discuss with them the legacy we have inherited and the work left to be done. Workshops will include: Higher Education--is it a Priority?; a workshop on financial aid, funding and access; Race Relations Within the University, The College Commitment to Civil Rights, The War on Drugs, and more.

This national conference will be an excellent opportunity for the UCSU to join with other post secondary educational institutions in working on Civil Rights, and the advancement of higher education while participating in an important national holiday.
