A BILL

---

BILL HISTORY

John Stockwell is the highest ranking individual oin the CIA to openly criticize the Agency. He served in the White House on the National Security Council in the mid 1970's, coordinating the CIA's covert war in Angola, a position with many parallels to recent activities of Oliver North. He is the recipient of the seocnd highest honor given by the CIA, the Medal of merit. He worked for the CIA for thirteen years, serving in Africa and Vietnam before moving to Washington to run the Angolan war. In 1977 he quit the CIA and wrote his best selling book, In Search of Enemies. Mr. Stockwell is scheduled to give a plenary address in Macky Auditorium on Friday, April 10, as part of the Conference on World Affairs.

BILL SUMMARY

Mr. Stockwell's travel expenses, food and lodging, as well as the hall rental and advertising costs are all paid for. This Bill will allocate $650 to partially fund his honorarium.

---
