A BILL

BILL HISTORY

Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity (PAD) is the largest international law fraternity. It is a service organization which brings together law students, law schools, the profession and the community. PAD is generally known for its efforts to promote professional competency and achievement within the legal profession. It is well known for its outstanding dedication to mutual self-help and to upholding the highest of professional ethics.

PAD boasts a membership of over 114,000 people throughout the U.S., Canada and Mexico. PAD offers many professional programs for students which focus on legal research, prison and court visitations and practice pointers from judges and attorneys. PAD international has an endowment fund for student loans for deserving individuals. PAD members also work extensively on a juvenile justice program which unites members of the profession to reduce crime and juvenile delinquency. In addition, PAD maintains strong alumni chapters. Alumni members often participate in school programs and offer valuable legal information, personal career counseling and job placement assistance.

PAD is also reaching out to interested undergraduates. The pre-law program includes lectures and panels about law school experiences, LSAT study sessions and moot court competitions.

It is particularly noteworthy that PAD has influenced many other legal organizations. It was the first to remove the "caucasian only" clause from membership requirements and was the first to admit women.

CU's chapter is one of the most active and visible groups at the law school and in the local community. It regularly hosts brown bag discussions, receptions and seminars. Currently, it is planning to send six members to the PAD International biennial convention in Scottsdale, Arizona on August 2-7. It has raised almost $700 to meet expenses but needs additional funds to finalize the plans. The delegation is ready, willing and able to schedule Brown Bags and other presentations. The convention will be discussed in detail and all relevant information will be explained to interested individuals and/or groups. This proposal for funds is indeed worthy of your consideration because PAD is indeed an asset to the law school, the university and the community.
