BILL HISTORY

The members of the Delta Nu Alpha Transportation Fraternity of the University of Colorado would like to request funds to attend the annual Council of Logistics Management Educational Conference in Boston, MA from Oct. 9 - 12, 1988.

This is the only conference of the year in which 2,500 of the most influential executives of the top domestic and international transportation and other major corporations attend. Representatives will be present from such corporations as General Motors, Keebler, United Air Lines, and Proctor and Gamble. There will be Budgeting, Human Resource Management, Forecasting & Inventory Management, and Electronic Data Interchange Applications. Last year four members of the Delta Nu Alpha Transportation Fraternity had the opportunity to attend this conference. Two of those members, Joe McCreary and Michelle LeBlance made contacts with company representatives and enabled U of C to attract a greater number of recruiters. Company, ABF Freight Lines, and Hewlett-Packard Company were so impressed with the four attending members that they came to the University of Colorado campus to interview not only transportation majors, but also marketing, finance, communication, english and economic majors.

Besides furthering the development and understanding of the Transportation/Logistics Concept, the conference will enable us to gain exposure to the water transportation industry.

This year Delta Nu Alpha plans on bringing an additional underclassman to gain experience that will result in greater continuity for years to come.
