A BILL

BILL HISTORY

This is a proposal requesting funds concerning the International Council of Shopping Centers. For the past few years, Dr. Clyde Richey, chairman of the Real Estate Department at C.U., has been receiving invitations for real estate students to attend their annual convention. The convention is an annual event consisting of a number of classes concerning different phases of real estate development. The courses are taught by successful people in the field. This program will allow a few interested students at C.U. to participate in their week long seminars. The package of courses that the students will be given, hold a total value of $1,960 for each student. However, the total package does not include transportation or boarding costs. The students of the C.U. Real Estate Association (CUREA) will not only be gaining incredible knowledge through the courses, but they will also have the opportunity to establish a strong rapport among the people in the national business community. The two representatives from CUREA will have further objectives. The objectives will be: to encourage further participation in this university, i.e. funding, guest speakers, and field knowledge. Their objectives will be under the direction of Dr. Richey to establish a strong relationship with these professionals so that we can integrate them into the field.

The 1989 convention will take place in Dallas, Texas, at the Fairmont Hotel, January 29 to February 2. It will offer about 70 different courses all taught by the most knowledgeable experts in their respective fields; in development, financing, leasing, retailing and operations in general. This is our best chance to take advantage of the educational opportunity and campaign for the university.
