A BILL

BILL HISTORY

In the February 6, 1989 issue of the Campus Press an ad was placed in the Fine Line stating, "STOP RAPE, say Yes". This ad is extremely offensive and is potentially dangerous to women. It implies that there should be no such thing as the concept of rape -- that women should be the sexual property of men, and therefore saying "no" is not a woman's right. These implications are clearly misogynistic.

The ad was included in spite of the fact that the Campus Press prints a disclaimer reserving the right to not print ads that are "obscene, racist, sexist, or in any way offensive to any segment of (the Campus Press) readership." Additionally, Legislative Council was given, amidst abject apologies, assurances that there would be no repetition of racist and sexist ads in the Fine Line. In spite of the oversight procedures the Campus Press promised, offensive material has once again appeared.

Research on college campuses indicates that 52% of women students surveyed have experienced some kind of sexual victimization. One in eight female students are raped. It is clear that rape and sexual victimization should be serious concerns for UCB students.

In November, 1988 UCB released a policy in sexual harassment. In its statement of policy, the document serves notice that, "It is the policy of the University of Colorado at Boulder to maintain the University community as a place of work, study, and residence free of sexual harassment . . . The University is committed to taking appropriate action against those who violate the University's policy prohibiting sexual harassment." Later, the document defines harassment in part by noting it is behavior that creates an environment that is " ...intimidating, hostile, or offensive..."

It is the feeling of the Legislative body that the Fine Line section of the Campus Press has contained, currently contains, and if we are to judge from past example, will continue to contain material that is sexually harassing and creates a dangerous and hostile situation for women on this campus.

It is not our intention to in any way censor or curtail the activities of the press. They have the right to print material that is legally allowable, and we fully support that right. However, as members of the Legislature, we have the right, and certainly the responsibility, to see that student fees do not contribute to the creation of a hostile and threatening campus environment.

BILL SUMMARY
