A BILL

BILL HISTORY

In the last 10 years in El Salvador over 70,000 Salvadorans have been killed by the military. In 1979 a group of campesinos, students, and workers formed the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front in response to the increased governmental repression for the late 1970's.

Jaime Suriano was a medical student at the University of El Salvador in the early 1980's. It was at this time that he helped co-found the Popular Medical Clinics. Soon after all the founders, except Suriano, were killed by Salvadoran death squads. Suriano then went into hiding and came to the U.S. where he became the FMLN United Nations delegate, and the official representative of the FMLN in New York City and Las Angeles. Since Oct. 1988 he's also served as the official U.S. representative of the radio station, Farabundo Marti.
