A BILL

BILL HISTORY

Oxfam is a student organization dedicated to issues of hunger and homelessness, both world-wide and within the community. Events on the CU campus to raise student awareness of these issues include food banks and sacrificial meals within residence halls, sororities and fraternities. A large number of CU students have responded positively to such efforts, and would like to learn more about these issues.

Oxfam would like to send one student to the fifth annual conference at Marquette University: "The National Student Campaign Against Hunger and Homelessness", on October 10-13, 1991. This conference will include students, campus administrators, faculty and community leaders. These participants will discuss organization and leadership skills to address problems of hunger and homelessness, both as an international issue, and as a specific set of problems within the community. Approaches to be discussed include community organizing, director service, education, legislative action, and research. These approaches compliment Oxfam's commitment to working with a wide variety of student groups to address these issue through both education and action.
