Women's Incentive

A BILL

BILL HISTORY

For thousands of years women have been subject to oppression and discrimination based solely on gender. While our society has made substantial advances in recognizing the rights of women, institutional sexism and societal sexism has prevented women from making advancements proportional to their efforts and qualifications. Often times, financial resources for education are unavailable to women who are otherwise more than qualified to matriculate in institutions of higher education. This shortage of money can also be the factor that keeps women from pursuing a degree, as non-traditional students, and advancing to their own self determined potential.

The Women's Incentive Fund (WIF) has been created to eliminate, in part, this restriction that women encounter, and is available based on need. As the sources for this fund grow, the bonds that society places on women will begin to deteriorate as we pursue a nonsexist society.

This years WIF applicants, as well as the coordinators and students, will attend a WIF Awareness Reception on April 8, 1992 to meet the applicants and find out more about their WIF. This Awareness Reception is important because it is the only opportunity nontraditional women have to be awarded and recognized. Furthermore, at this time, we examine the need of women on this campus in trying to obtain an education.
