BILL HISTORY

Oxfam America is an international agency that funds self-help development projects and disaster relief in poor countries in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, and also prepares and distributes educational material for people in the United States on the issues of development and hunger. The student run Oxfam Hunger Action at the CU-Boulder campus works on community projects, gleaning, the Fast for a World Harvest, Overseas Development projects such as Bike-Aid, and community and campus educational outreach.

Overseas Development Network chapter members from all over the United States will come together to build their skills as chapter organizers and student leaders. ODN student chapter members will meet with development educators ODN international partners, founding members of the network, ODN board members and staff to learn about the links between environment and development issues while attending workshops and taking part in interactive learning sessions, working groups, field trips and simulation games. The goals of the seminar are: to learn about one another's activities, to build partnerships with ODN partners from around the world, to learn more about grassroots environmental initiatives and to gain in-depth training and experience in campus organizing around development issues.
